Every day, millions of people across Latin America and the Caribbean struggle to get the food, shelter, and healthcare they need to thrive.

IT IS OUR MISSION TO CHANGE THAT.

With our community of supporters, we are making a difference.

The Resource Foundation

As soon as COVID-19 hit Brazil, CEAP worked quickly to mobilize in São Paulo, to enroll both young people and their parents in online education courses. The training offered an opportunity to strengthen job readiness skills, and professional mentoring. The project not only improved the skills and job outcomes of the young people involved, but also strengthened family relationships, as parents got to work with their children to complete the course together.
The Bahamas Aids Foundation, a long time partner of TRF, provides a safe place for children and young people to learn, share and grow, empowering them to feel safe to take their medication and live healthy fulfilling lives. There is often a stigma for young people living with HIV/AIDS, and the foundation gives these young people a sense of security, place, and normalcy. To help mitigate the impacts of the COVID-19 crisis, The Bahamas AIDS Foundation delivered much needed groceries, personal hygiene products, and household cleaning items for the participants’ families.
Emprendiendo tu Futuro, (Building your Future), sought to promote and strengthen entrepreneurship skills in vulnerable young adults who were impacted by high levels of unemployment due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Through individual and group mentoring sessions carried out online, 132 young people were mentored and given the opportunity to learn from Moody's volunteers. Topics ranged from marketing, communication, and workplace safety to market analysis and digital strategy.

We are excited to share that 100% of the graduates will be invited to be a part of the Conciencia Graduate Network.
INSTITUTO DE NUTRICIÓN DE CENTRO AMÉRICA Y PANAMÁ (INCAP)
Self-Care Course for Health Care Providers in Central America

SUPPORTED BY JOHNSON & JOHNSON FOUNDATION

INCAP’s innovative training program worked with healthcare professionals on the frontline of the COVID-19 pandemic across Guatemala, El Salvador, and Panama. Through both in person and online platforms, INCAP worked with nursing professionals, doctors, nutritionists, psychologists, and health educators to strengthen and promote the importance of self-care to foster resilience, recovery, and well-being.
Patrulla worked tirelessly throughout the COVID-19 pandemic to provide specialized kits of personal protective equipment to healthcare workers on the frontlines of the crisis in Colombia.

The project supported 20 hospitals identified as being high-need throughout Colombia in both urban and rural areas. This support, combined with funding from outside sources, helped the project reach 100 total hospitals, 2,000 healthcare workers, and as many as 600,000 community members.
The Women’s Initiative II supported over 1,000 vulnerable women in the Sula Valley in Honduras. The women who had lacked access to education and economic opportunities, were given virtual training sessions on communication, business management, and women’s rights. The project provided the women with entrepreneurship training, a strengthened sense of self, and knowledge that they can rely on their small businesses.
Proeducación worked with 35 primary schools across 5 states, reaching over 13,000 children, 850 teachers, and 2,150 community leaders. Through online education programs, Proeducación sought to strengthen emotional health, creativity, and self-directed learning in students who participated.

Proeducación takes a family focused approach to education, while nurturing resilience, the importance of self care, and gender equality.
